SOME NEW FEATURES AND IMPROVEMENTS

Since our issue of last Sunday we have decided on some new features and we hope, improvements, in our journalistic work.

Believing that specialization would achieve better results than generalization, we have assigned to each member of the staff, a department over which he is to exercise his own judgment and discretion, entirely, and in which he may employ his own knowledge, or the talents of other pupils. For each division, the pupil has been chosen, who is considered the best qualified for the position.

We expect to make this paper, a periodical, such as will have no superior in any high school of the south. Our past work we know, has been faulty, perhaps, even crude, but when it is remembered that this is our first work in journalism, and that we are entirely without precedent, we feel sure that our shortcomings will be excused.

For the success of the paper, we need the co-operation, not only of the teachers, but also the readers.

We are always grateful for criticisms and suggestions, that aim to improve the status of "The Echo."

EXCHANGES.

This department, through just established has an encouraging future before it.

So far, we have received but three publications, two of which are monthlies.

The first, "Donnybrook Fair," is edited by the pupils of the Hillsborough High School at Tampa. It is well gotten up as to matter, paper and cuts. "The Lucky Opal" reminds one of Rosa Carey. "Quibs and Cranks" and "Translations from Vergil" are also very good.

"The Georgia Tech" is a semi-monthly, brimming over with class spirit. From "Our Athletic Outlook," on the first page, to Carlo A. X from Gridiron Gurgles on the last page, every article is alive with love, pride, and loyalty to the "Alma Mater."

The current number of "The Peabody Record" is clever, original, and forceful. Particularly noticeable is the large number of thriving societies maintained by this great southern college for teachers. We are especially glad to learn of what is being done at the Normal, because three of our teachers, Mr. Lockey, Miss Reese and Miss Thompson, are its graduates. "Campus Notes" contains the following:

Miss Mary Thompson (A. B. '01) is the guest of Miss Cornelia Martin en route to Pensacola, Fla., where she will again occupy the chair of Latin in the high school of that place.

From "Donnybrook Fair" we take the following clipping:

The true object of education is the preparation for a life of greater usefulness in the midst of a vast brotherhood of humanity.

LITERARY DEPARTMENT.

Being required to use a certain group of words or their synonyms in a short theme, the following clever little story was written by Katie Caro of Grade 8, Section B:

What Happened to Mrs. Spider.

Old Mrs. Spider taught school. Every day all the little spiders from all over town came to her house to receive instruction concerning the easiest way to catch flies. I suppose you think it strange that they went to school and studied flies instead of books, but recollect that spiders are more interested in insects than they are in education obtained from books.

During school hours, one day, a fearful accident occurred which put

Mrs. Spider into a troubled state of mind. Some mean human being threw a large stone right into her web, nearly tearing it away from the limb of a tree on which it hung. But the lessons continued, although the madam was in a nervous state over the destruction of her dwelling on which she had put much hard labor. But just before school was dismissed, and the slanting of the setting sun began to turn the broken threads of the web into rainbows of many colors, Mrs. Spider broke down completely.

She had tried to keep back her show of feeling all day, but it had conquered in the end. The pupils pacified her with many sympathetic words, and school was dismissed.

She did not follow the little spiders out to the edge of the web this afternoon and hid them an affectionate "good evening," as was generally her custom; but let them get up quietly and saunter away without the least regard as to what the pupils thought of her strange behavior. She was despairing and angry, too. Should she rebuild her old home, or go and find another location? She was puzzled, but at last decided to remain where she was. But later on, she confessed to herself that she had made a mistake, for the labor to repair the old web, was sufficient to build a new one, and perhaps in a more secure place than this. The sun did not return to the heavens the next morning, and it rained, but cleared off in the afternoon, and Mrs. Spider made such good progress with her weaving that long before dark she saw with satisfaction her old web restored to its former beauty. The one purpose now in her heart (if she had a heart) was to poison the rude boy, who had molested her but she didn't know exactly where to find him. "But he had better not return and play that game again," she thought.

"Who could be evil to such an impolite person? I should surely give him a fatal bite."

Not long afterwards, Mrs. Spider moved into the deep woods far from the city, and beyond the reach of sticks and stones and rude boys.

THE EXPERIENCE OF A SILVER DOLLAR

departments of the mint building of Philadelphia.

When taken from the stamping mill when first I came to life in the shape of a dollar, it was in one of the press, I, with about five hundred other dollars, was placed in a huge canvas bag, and the bag, as I could tell by the noise was cased in a strong box.

For a long time we were moving about, first, slow and then, fast.

At last, as I was just beginning to feel as if I could bear no more jostling, the sack was taken from the case and I and my companions were placed in the safe of a bank in Denver, Colorado. From there I was paid to a miner.

The miner put a handful of dollars, of whom I was one, into his pocket. When next I saw the light it was in a gambling house, where I had been taken by the miner.

The miner lost me to the owner of the gambling house, who sent me with some other money to the distillery, from which he bought his liquors.

Now, I was to see the city side of life. I was paid to one of the employees of the distillery, who paid me to his grocer.

The grocer was a poor man, and being a whimsical sort of fellow, decided to mark me, so that he would know me if he should ever again come across me.

As the grocer was crossing a stream one day, I slipped from his pocket unnoticed into it.

For a period of perhaps three or four years, I lay in the bed of the stream.

One day, a bare-footed boy, wading in the stream, struck his toe against me, where I lay in the soft mud.

He picked me up and was overjoyed to think he had found a dollar. The boy hurried home and gave me to his father, who took me and paid me to the man, who had lost me.

This grocer, now grown to be a rich and important merchant, recognized at a glance that I was the dollar, which he had marked, and decided to keep me as a remembrance of his days of poverty.

If time would allow, I could enumerate other of my experiences, but they are not so interesting as the ones I have given.

Note—This department will publish poems and stories of merit, by any pupil of "Number One."

NEWS NOTES.

The Spanish classes are very enthusiastic over their work.

A new supply of laboratory apparatus has been received, consisting of test tubes, flasks, a dynamo, an electrometer, batteries, etc.

A number of new Globe-Wernicke book-cases have been installed in the library and added much to its beauty, as well as facilitating the pupils in consulting reference books.

The French pupils are doing very good work and expect to complete "La Mare du Diable" by Christmas, after which they will take up Literature Française by Professor Fortier of Tulane, and also read some advanced classics.

ATHLETIC NOTES.

The High School football team is now about prepared to enter the match game to be played the last of December. However, as yet, no game has been arranged for any certain date; but the manager of the team has corresponded with the Chipley High School for a game to be played on Christmas day. A game, also, will probably be arranged with the P. C. S. to be played on New Year's day.

The boys have all worked hard for the success of the team and will continue to do so until the football season is over. Herbert Caro and John Lewis have now entered school, much to the delight of the members of the football team, as well as to other pupils of the school. Though they have not yet had an opportunity for much football practice, it is hoped by all that they will fill two of the strong positions on the team. The team has been very fortunate in having Mr. W. A. Blount Jr., as coach, and the success of the High School in football this year, will be largely due to the genius of Mr. Blount.

The football team of the Fifth and Sixth Grades of School No. 2, has challenged the team of the Fifth and Sixth Grades of School No. 1, for a game to be played in the near future. The challenge has been accepted.

The girls of the High School team have not yet found a place to play basketball. They are not discouraged, however, for they believe in the old saying: "Where there's a will there's a way."

JINGLES AND JESTS.

A Parody.

"Laws of students all remind us
We should pay no heed to looks,
But on passing leave behind us

Obstinate racking coughs that settle on the lungs and may develop into Pneumonia over night are quickly cured by

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR

It soothes and heals the inflamed air passages, stops the cough, heals and strengthens the lungs. FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR contains no opiates or other harmful drugs, and is safest for children and delicate people.

Remember the name—FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR—and insist upon having the genuine, as no other remedy is so safe or as certain in results.

Given Up to Die With Croup.

Mrs. P. I. Cordier, of Mannington, Ky., writes: "My three-year old girl had a severe case of croup; the doctor said she could not live and I gave her up to die. I went to the store and got a bottle of FOLEY'S Honey and Tar. The first dose gave quick relief and saved her life."

Editor Cured of Lung Trouble.

W. L. Straub, Editor of St. Petersburg (Fla.) Times, writes: "When coming across the bay from Port Tampa I got wet and caught a cold that affected my throat and lungs. I neglected it, thinking I would soon recover, but I kept getting worse, until I bought a bottle of FOLEY'S Honey and Tar, and it cured me completely."

Three sizes—25c, 50c, $1.00. The 50 cent size contains two and one-half times as much as the small size and the $1.00 bottle almost six times as much. Refuse Substitutes.

Coughing Spell Caused Death.

"Harry Duckwell, aged 25 years, choked to death early yesterday morning at his home, in the presence of his wife and child. He contracted a slight cold a few days ago and paid but little attention to it. Yesterday morning he was seized with a fit of coughing which continued for some time. His wife sent for physician but before he could arrive, another coughing spell came on and Duckwell died from suffocation.—St. Louis Globe Democrat, Dec. 1st, 1901."

ROSE'S GENUINE WHISKEY

WE POINT WITH PRIDE

To the name of "Rose," the definition of reliability, the staunch, unflinching Champion of Genuineness, the old-established name that for thirty-eight years has safeguarded its thousands of customers against Adulteration and Quick Profit Schemes in Whiskey.

We offer you, in this advertisement, two brands of our Genuine Old Rye and Corn Whiskey, in which Age and Purity are the paramount factors. Age is a much abused word in connection with whiskey. The inheritance of Time Alone, is the Only guarantee of the True Age of whiskey. This Unequivocal Guarantee Covers Every Rose Brand. Genuinely Old Whiskey is only another guarantee of Genuinely Pure Whiskey. One quality is the natural sequence of the other. This, in brief, is a terse, simple statement of honest facts about our Old Rye and Corn Whiskey.

They are made by the same processes of distillation that produced the famous whiskeys of our forefathers, when contaminating adulterations in food and drink were unknown, and when no suspicion ever lurked about the products of the distiller. This is the class of goods we are offering you. To Day and ANY DAY your order finds a safe harbor in our hands. Every order shipped on train following its receipt. Send Post Office or Express Money Order, cash in Registered Letter, or New York Exchange. Ask for our handsome little booklet, "Commentary and Price List of Old Rye and Corn Whiskey."
